Groups of Rebels Cross the Trocha Into Pinar del Rio—Claim Made that Maceo is Still Alive.

New Orleans, La., January 10.—A special to the Picayune from Havana says: Awful! Horrible! I can't find the right word to describe the state of things existing here in this part of the Antilles!
Dr. Gaspar A. Belancourt, a well-known dentist of this city, and a personal friend of President Cleveland, was arrested on Saturday night, the 10th, on his way home, and detained at the chief of police's office, and up to 2 o'clock p. m. next day wasn't allowed any food, nor any notice given of his detention to his family. The servant missed him at his office and went to his private rooms, and also found he had not slept there; then he became alarmed and notified his son at about 12 o'clock Sunday. After many inquiries it was given out at the "prefectura" that he was there and incommunicado, which means he can not have any communication with outsiders. After some talk with the officer on duty he was allowed a glass of milk and rolls, and later during the day provision for a bed and covers, so he might be comfortable that succeeding evenings. He had been kept in a sitting position on a small wooden bench through the previous night—an old gentleman 63 years old and used to good life and its comforts, and of late has been complaining of ill health.
The doctor is an American citizen, and Consul Lee was immediately notified by the doctor's son and proceedings began by first asking the cause of his arrest, and up to this hour General Lee, the United States consul at this port, has not received any official communication answering it.
"The family of the doctor has tried in vain to see the chief of police or some functionary and get some satisfaction, and to no purpose—he is out or sleeping, and can not be disturbed."
The doctor was for many years a resident of your city, and has among your people relatives (Dr. Q. Kehue is his brother-in-law), and many friends and former patients, who will no doubt seek to help him. He was established for many years on Magazine street.
It was quite providential that Consul General Lee had arrived but a few days before, and is quite active in all matters concerning his duties, for had it been any other interim, things would have looked gloomy for the old doctor. God bless General Lee!

It must be known that in the town of Guanabacoa, where they retreated on the night of the 25th, the most horrible outrages had been committed by the Spanish troops under the newly installed commandant, Colonel Fonsdevila. This butcher had succeeded Count O'Farrill, who was relieved on account of incompetence, yet drunkness. Fonsdevila was the same commandant who did all the massacres that Mr. Greenham of the World, about a year ago, exposed in the columns of his paper at Campo Florido, and for which General Weyler expelled him from the island. This wicked officer and his command arrested in the streets and killed in the most brutal manner, the residents of the town, who were terror-stricken, and are coming in from all parts of this city. The men, particularly, do not sleep in Guanabacoa, but leave their families and return in the morning to look after them till they can arrange quarters in the capital to remove out of the reach of this monster.
It is well known here that groups of rebels have crossed the trocha westward into Pinar del Rio, and are working among the people and their comrades that Maceo lives, though badly wounded. It was at first given out by the rebels that he was dead to prevent the too close pursuit into the province of Matanzas, where they sought the chief when they found there was some life left. It seems the rebels have a secure field hospital in or about Cienfuegos de Zepata, and very well attended by experienced doctors, and they have found that the law would, though very severe, is a pleasing one, the worst being in the stomach, where a slight peritonitis set in, but is gradually yielding to treatment. I give this for what it is worth. I make no comments, though I come from very reliable source. I have talked with a gentleman who had a private conversation with General Melillo, and this general confessed that whatever atrocities he had committed were always obeying superior orders, and that "any English officer under such orders would not have hesitated to do likewise." He spoke of having taken an insurgent hospital by surprise and killed everyone there, excepting Henry Delgado and a German subject. What reasons he had for sparing those two he did not state. Mr. Delgado and the German were brought to this city and continue in the hospital.

WHERE NOT LYNCHED.
Two Negroes Supposed to Have Been Mobbed Still Alive.
Birmingham, Ala., January 10.—In the summer of 1891 H. B. Walker the railroad agent at Suspension, Ga., was shot and robbed by two negroes. Detective Wallace of Columbus, Ga., while trying to arrest Riley Walker and Richard Williams, colored, for the crime, was shot and killed by them. The murder caused great indignation, and when the negroes were arrested they only escaped lynching by being hurried off by train to jail at Montgomery.
In August of that year they were taken back to Union Springs and each given a life sentence. They were then taken to the city and placed in a cell. The prisoners were placed on a train to be hurried away to Montgomery again. Near Mitchell station a mob stopped the train, boarded it and overpowered the officers, took the negroes off. It was supposed they were lynched.
Yesterday Richard Williams was found and re-arrested at Highlog, Bullock county. He had changed his name but finally acknowledged his identity. He says he and Walker, while handcuffed together, were pushed off the train, and then the mob sprang off one hundred yards further up the track. Meanwhile the two negroes had scrambled off and ran to a ditch near by where they hid. The mob searched for them, crying "Where are they? We won't find them. Later the prisoners went to an old negro's house and got him to cut off their handcuffs with an adze. Then they parted company and fled. Walker's whereabouts are unknown. Williams has since been working at a mill twenty miles from Mitchell.

Ray for Armor Plate.
Pittsburg, Pa., January 10.—The powerful X ray machine constructed by Professor R. A. Fessenden of the Western University, was on exhibition tonight before the Academy of Sciences and Art at Carnegie hall. Professor James Keeler of the Allegheny Observatory, in telling of the wonderful tests which the machine has been put to, said that it had already thrown a ray of light through four inches of solid iron and he thinks later on it will be developed so that it will pierce a six or eight inches and estimated strongly that it may yet be utilized in inspection of armor plate.

London, January 10.—A firmer money market has caused a reaction in investment securities, which were mostly asked. Foreign securities continue strong. DEMONSTRATION OF SYMPATHY.
Thousands Cheered the Marquis on His Departure.
Havana, January 10.—There was a notable demonstration of sympathy for the Marquis of Apertegui today on the occasion of his departure for Spain. The marquis embarked at 4 and sailed at 5 on the steamer San Augustine. Captain-General Weyler, on account of the immense crowds, made his way to and from the wharf of the La Machina from the marine palace on foot. Upon the arrival of General Weyler at the wharf the band played the royal march and the crowds cheered for Spain, for General Weyler and for the marquis.

The military governor, General Alameda y Acebo and Pratts, the general attorney and the engineers, the government secretary to the Marquis of Pelmota and Governor Ferrua with the national committee of defense, the chiefs and directors of the political parties, the mayor, the chamber of commerce, the planters general, the magistrates, the directors of railroads had fared to the marquis after he had gone on board.

There were three steamers accompanying the San Augustine out of the harbor, one of them having on board the hospital of the volunteers of the Marquis of Apertegui command and also the boats, all of the vessels being decorated with banners and having on board bands of music being crowded with people of all social classes, shouting off the crackers. This flotilla accompanied the San Augustine far outside the harbor.

The Marquis of Apertegui is accompanied to Spain by his family.
The wharves all the way from La Machina to Cabello and La Punta were crowded with many thousands of spectators, all cheering for Apertegui.

General Armas captured near Cavajabos, the insurgent leader Calibali and two officers who were court-martialed for complicity in the burning of Charles Honda near Guanajay. They were hanged on January 7 at Artemisa by the volunteers.

BOY KILLED BY SOLDIERS.
He Refused to Cheer for Spain—More Bodies Discovered.

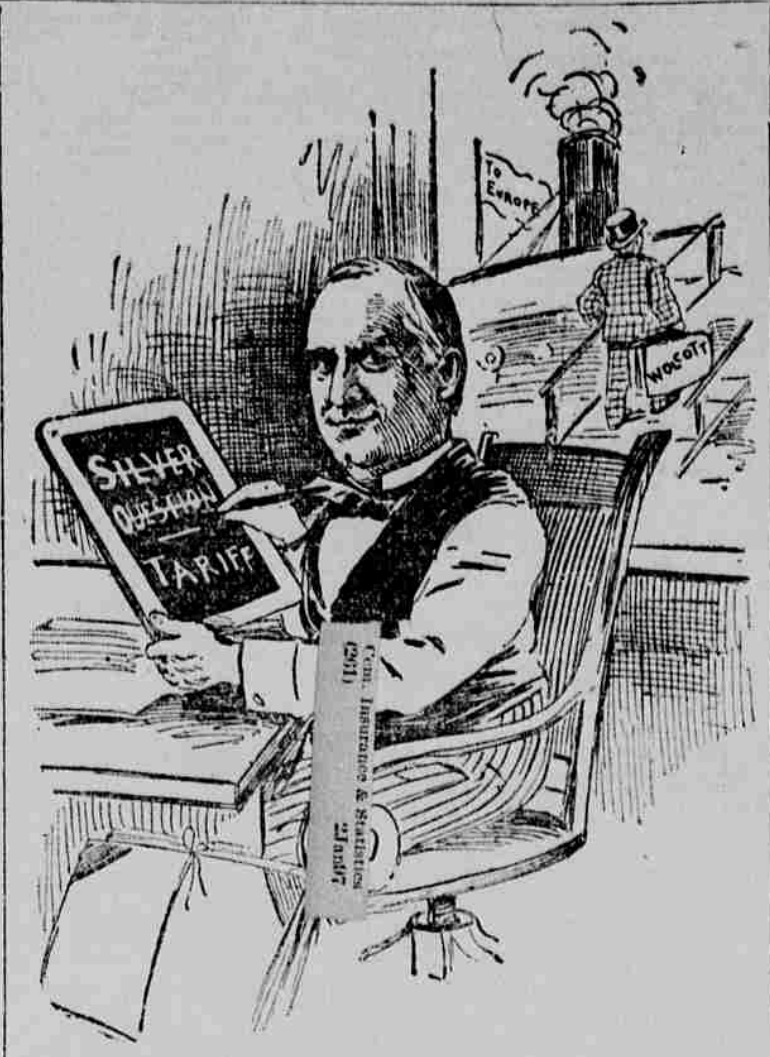

New York, January 11.—A special to the World from Tampa, Fla., says: A school boy of 10 years was killed in Guanabacoa on Thursday evening by a Spanish patriot because he refused to hurrah for Spain. The lad smiled when the soldiers asked him to hurrah, not comprehending what they wanted. They cursed him, as a "Cuban whelp," and choked him, so two miles from his home and left his body in the streets.
In the fields surrounding the city dogs have been eating human flesh and gnawing human bodies. More than 600 people have moved from Guanabacoa within ten days. Another large pile with dead bodies in it was discovered Thursday near Guanabacoa. The bodies were in such a state of decomposition that they were not fit to be buried. The bodies were too far advanced to permit recognition of the bodies. It is supposed that the victims of Spanish cruelty belonged to the poor class of that suburb, as many have been reported "missing" lately.

Antonio Reguero, a native Cuban who was forced to leave home as the police were after him on suspicion, has arrived here. He says the raid at Cabaillas called a Spanish victory was a great Cuban success. The town was garriboed by 500 Spaniards. He had three cannon. Before the raid a Cuban party under Major Serres took the outpost and almost captured the entire place before the Spaniards knew what was going on.

The cannon in one black house was turned on the Spaniards and they retreated to the trenches. Major Serres threw part of his force in the rear of the Spaniards and routed them.
The Cubans did not pursue; they were after spoils and supplies. The Spaniards had managed to spike one cannon, but the Cubans took the other two with them as well as the complete camp equipment.

Found His Wife Strangled to Death.
Cincinnati, Ohio, January 10.—A special to the Commercial-Tribune from Shakerstown, Ky., says:
William Levine, a highly respected farmer, went home near here last night, after an absence of several hours and found his young wife dead and cold on the floor, her two infant children lying on her throat, crying bitterly. Levine marks on her throat, the clothing and all the furniture disordered and other signs of a struggle. He ran and gave the alarm. A hunt for the murderer all night and today has been without result.

BARRY WAS KILLED.

Adventures of Four Americans Who Sought to Join Insurgents.
TWICE CAPTURED BY THE SPANIARDS
One Was Shot Down While Attempting to Escape.

SWORE ALLEGIANCE TO QUEEN
Forced to Sign a Paper Promising to Do All They Could Against the Republic of Cuba.

Philadelphia, Pa., January 10.—James McGuire of this city, Jeremiah Bonds of New York and Charles W. Allen of Stamford, Conn., have just reached this city, after a thrilling experience in Cuba, in the course of which William Barry of New York, who had accompanied them, was shot and killed by the Spaniards.
On the 10th of last September the trio mentioned, in company with Barry, started for Cuba to join the forces of the beligerents, and arrived in Havana September 21. They fell in with Jose Ruiz, a Cuban patriot, who volunteered to guide the party to the retreat occupied by the Cuban commanders. They headed for the Pinar del Rio district and when near Mariel, in the Guanajay district, were surprised by a body of about fifty Spaniards. They were then taken prisoners, searched and finding papers, creating suspicion on Ruiz, they held a consultation and decided to kill all the prisoners. The conversation was carried on in Spanish, but Ruiz interpreted their remarks for his American friends.
Recognizing the desperate situation in which they had placed themselves, the quartette decided to risk their lives in a vigorous effort to escape rather than to wait and be shot. McGuire rolled over to Ruiz and the young Cuban used his teeth with such success that he soon had McGuire's hands cut loose. McGuire then took a penknife and liberated his companions. It was dark, but the moon showed light sufficient to illuminate the ground for some distance. With a rush the five men ran to the spot where they noticed some machetes, revolvers and belts full of ammunition. Then they attempted to get away, but the Spaniards pursued, firing a deadly volley after their escaping prisoners. Barry fell, shot through the heart at the first fire and his right arm was perforated by a bullet. The other four succeeded in outdistancing their pursuers. They made every effort to get back and recover Barry's body, however, but were unsuccessful, and were compelled to make their way further into the mountainous regions of Pinar del Rio and after a tortuous and wearisome journey they arrived in the region of San Cristobal.

A few days afterwards they were recaptured by a band of Spanish patriots. Their hands were tied behind their backs and they were compelled to march for a distance of over 100 miles, when they were thrown into a prison. The next day they were forced again to march again until late in the afternoon, when they were taken to a prison, and so they were marched from prison to prison until Havana was reached. Here they were thrown into a well guarded prison, where they were separated.
On December 23 the three Americans were before some commanding officer whose name they did not learn, but it is presumed by them that was General Weyler. They were told Ruiz, the young Cuban, had committed suicide by shooting himself with a revolver which he had snatched from one of the guards. The three friends said nothing, but they decided the suicide story and were firmly convinced that the young Cuban had been murdered. The trio of Americans were offered their liberty and passage home if they signed a paper swearing allegiance to the queen of Spain and promising that all they could against the Cuban cause in the United States. They agreed to and the three men were released.
